Dear Ms. Hesse:

I wish to oppose the proposed settlement in the Microsoft case. I do not feel the decision is in the public interest. In my experience with working with computers I have been annoyed by the virtual Microsoft monopoly in many areas and I feel the decision is both vague and I do not see how it can be enforced. I feel that once the publicity has faded, the situation will return to "start" and Microsoft will go back to using illegal and non competitive means to take over the software industry.

I believe that computer users must have a choice in their decisions about what products to use on their computers. I believe that the settlement must provide ways for competing non-Microsoft operating systems, applications, and software components to run properly with Microsoft products.

I hope that you will take my protest into consideration.

Sincerely yours,
Marianne J. Huber
